ASOTRECOL* & injured Colombian GM workers resisting illegal firings

@ GM Headquarters, Detroit

8:30 AM June 12th****

Renaissance Center on Jefferson Ave

"Today's GM will do the right thing."

- Mary Barra, CEO

If GM is doing the "right thing," then

- why did the Colombian Labor Ministry fine GM over $200,000 for illegally firing injured workers? (5/2016)
- why did a Colombian judge issue GM a fine and sentence the plant manager to 3 days in jail for refusing a court order to re-instate injured workers? (8/2017)
- Why do GM workers continue to be injured on the job? And then fired?

* ASOTRECOL is an association of injured workers illegally fired by GM from an assembly plant in Colombia without compensation or health care. They've occupied a tent since Aug. 2011 in front of the U.S. Embassy to expose the unsafe working conditions, and press GM for a fair settlement. Their non-violent actions of witness, including symbolic crucifixions and several hunger strikes—with lips sewn shut—have garnered worldwide attention.

** Please note: 4 pm rally on 6/11 is cancelled.
